SHIPWRECK, AND ALL ON BOARD PERISHED .-A slip from the office of the Charleston Courier states that the brig Chili, Capt. Thomas Adams, of this port, sailed hence with a cargo of rice on the 27th August, for Havana. The Chili parted with the schooner Merchant, hence for Matanzas, off, Key West, on the evening of the 3d September. On that night a gale commenced from the North-East which swept over the Gulf and along the North Coast of Cuba, and on the following day, with the fierceness and destruction of a hurricane; since which time there has been no information of that unfortunate vessel or her crew. Had any material vestige of the brig remained in that narrow sea, or on its borders, it is almost certain the vigilance of the wreckers would have brought it to notice; but our apprehensions lead us to suppose the Chili, with her crew, must have been overwhelmed in the tremendous wind-sea of that storm. The Chili had been newly repaired and put in complete order, and belonged to S. Chadwick & Co. of this City. Post.

FATAL ACCIDENT .- On Friday, James Henry Campbell, a lad about 15 years of age, came across some boys in Brighton who had been hunting. One of them had not been able to get his gun off-had snapped at various things without effect. This caused Campbell to say that such a gun was not good for any thing, and he should not be afraid to snap it at himself; and he placed the muzzle against his abdomen and pulled the trigger, when the charge exploded, mortally wounding the inconsiderate lad. He lived till 2 o'clock on Sunday morning, when he expired.

WHOLE NO. 477

THE RIGHT OF SEARCH QUESTION .- Our correspondence from Washington has transmitted us an important piece of information, which gives the last blow to the Treaties of 1831, '33 and '41. A communication has been made by the American Cabinet to the French Legation, explaining the situation of the United States since the Treaty negotiated with Lord Ashburton. By this note the Government at Washington declares that at no time, nor under any circumstances, could any foreign nation be allowed to share the right of sovereignty over American vessels. The Union is eady to come to an understanding with all the Powers to cause her vessels to rigorously observe the laws, but she will never permit any foreign authority to set foot on board her ships. She is too jealous of her national honor and the independence of her flag.

Such is the Treaty as it is understood, and accepted by the Cabinet of the United States. If to some credulous minds there remain any doubts as to the nature of the concessions made by the English, and on the firm resistance maintained by America, these doubts must be removed by these comments. After such a categorical declaration, M. Guizot himself can no longer submit to, for France, the obligations which America declined as humiliating for her honor, and as attempts against the independence of her flag. The public right of the seas has been preserved by this memorable act, and, after the concession made to America, the English can no longer demand the Right of Search from any other Power without asking for the sacrifice of her dignity and sovereign right . .

The attitude of the American nation in this affair s a service rendered to France and to the cause of the freedom of the seas. We have no hesitation in declaring our gratitude to them for it; but, on the other hand, the Americans are also indebted to us for the opinion manifested in this Country on misfortune had befallen them. I do not consider the Right of Search question, which has given a powerful support to their resistance.

But let us not deceive ourselves: all is not setis not a Treaty of Peace which Lord Ashburton has signed; it is a truce—it is a provisional arrangement which still bears with it the germs of future discord. Questions of great magnitude have not been touched on, and nothing decisive has been agreed upon between these two rivals. The alliance of France is therefore more than ever important to the United States. Hitherto our relations at Washington had been entrusted too much to subalterns in diplomacy. Our Legation there has never enjoyed the rank and influence to which it was entitled. The Americans have complained that, while they have sent to Paris their most skilful and distinguished men, France has only sent to Washington her diplomatic novices, men without renown or personal eclat. Our relations with the United States assume sufficient importance that we should be represonted there in the most efficient manner. If Lord Ashburton has not entirely failed in his mission, if he has obtained the least favorable arrangement that England could have hoped for, he owes it certainly to the popularity of his name, and to the power of his great fortune—of which he has made a sumptions use while at Washington. We know that these princely fortunes are rare in France; but it is not by his fortune alone that a diplomatist obtains influence and credit with a free Government and a free assembly. It is for the French Governof peace à tout prix, and to the service alone of a personal Government. [Le Commerce, Paris.

FATAL ACCIDENT .- A most distressing event occurred in this city on Friday morning last, between 7 and 3 o'clock. Mr. Augustine Caldwell, of the firm of Jewett & Caldwell, carpenters, fell from the top of a house he was at work upon in Barton Square, and was instantaneously killed. He had just carried up two bundles of shingles. and was standing upon the ladder conversing very cheerfully with his partner, when he suddenly fell backwards, apparently unconscious as if in a fit, all blame, as he knew nothing of the outrage until and was precipitated a distance of 35 or 40 feet, to the ground. He was taken up dead. Mr. C. is said to have been a very industrious and worthy citizen. He was about 28 years of age, and has left a wife and one child. [Salem Register.

The Kentucky Methodist Conference closed its session at Lexington, Kentucky, on the 22d ult. The excellent Bishop Waugh presided. The number of ministers was very large, and at it there were representatives from the neighboring States, New York and Texas. The Ohio Conference was still in session at Cincinnati on the 11th. The Conference, says the Editor of the Western Advocate, is very full, few being absent, and all the members appearing in good health and spirits.

TO A DISCERNING PUBLIC.

Self-preservation is an inherent principle firmly seated in the heart of man. He alights upon the shores of Time the most helpless of all God's creatures, but as soon as Reason impropriety in placing some extracts from it be-fore our readers, and, as we think that they may self with objects of protection; being endowed with that most noble intellect which distinguishes him as the head of all. By his power mountains are leveled, rivers are turned from their course, the land is girt with iron-bound tracks, enabling him to fly, as it were, with the wings of the wind; the ocean sparkles beneath his feet as the gallant ship speeds on to some distant shore. But with all this delegated wisdom, man is helpless still; as the green foliage of nature is destrayed by the autumnal frosts, so are men cut down by improvement, who will say that suffering and pain is to accompany us in all our walks of life. Among the many and important discoveries of this generation is one recently an-nounced to the public, whose fame will be written as with appeals of the suffering for relief, has been answered .-Diseases have been cured by this invaluable medicine, such as not furnished in the records of time. These things are not done in secret places or some ukknown town, but are done in our public places and the highways. They are healing virtues of this new preparation, and the facts unfolded, although gigantic, are as plain as the light of day and where is that High Priest of Envy that can gainsay

The following cure of an inveterate case of Scrofula submitted to the careful consideration of a discerning public, and its truth vouched for from such a source as cannot be called in question. It may well be said, " Truth is stranger than Fiction." Messrs Sands: Gent.—In the cholera summer of the year 1832, a disease first made its appearance on the end of my tongue, which continued to spread gradually for three years, during which time I was usder the treatment of different paysicians without receiving any essential benefit. I was salivated until the flesh dropped from my gums. My tongue was scarified, frequently canterized, slit lengthwise, and cut crosswise, until I was told that the only cure would be to cut my tongue off: the root; but as it seemed uncertain whether this would put a stop to the ravages of such a disease, I preferred to risk my life rather than submit to the operation. NEW-YORK, Sept. 14, 1842.

the operation. A scrofulous affection now commenced on my right cheek a little below the eye, and continuing inward soon attacked the bone, forming matter internally, which discharged in the mouth through an opening caused by the extraction of a tooth. The disease then seized upon the roof of the mouth, discharged a thick fettd matter from the nese, which resembled soft bones or shells, as it came out in strings as large round as a goose quill. Pieces of bone also dropped from my head into the mouth through the passage made by the disease in the upper jaw. The complaint now spread over the nose and enveloped both eyes, destroying the lower eye-lashes and stopping the opening from the eyes to the nose, which caused almost a continual flow of tears. At this time my smell and taste were both gone, my hearing searly and my sight so much impaired as to render it impossitime my smell and taste were both gone, my hearing nearly so, and my sight so much impaired as to render it impossible for me to distinguish an object at the distance of two feet. My memory also was so much affected that I could not retain any thing I heard said for five minutes; and my condition, if not wholly, was nearly that of idiocy. The disease occasionally appeared to be better, and then I looked toward death as the termination of my sufferings.

Hearing through the newspapers the remarkable cures of your Sarsaparilla, hope sprung up afresh, and although my case was considered beyond the reach of art, I resolved to make one more effort to regain my health. At this pe-

Gentlemen.—A tale of misery and woe is mine to tell, and as memory ever constant in the task brings back scenes that have past, I shudder at the picture and almast wender if it is so. For months stretched upon a bed of suffering and distress, racked by the most excruciating pain, dum. With agony—the only voice that came from my lips the voice of greaning, and my only hope despair. Often and often while others slept in the still hours of night, I have turned my face to the wall and wished to die.

Although I stood on the brink of termity and the thread of life was nearly severed, yet I still breathed on, the lamp held out to burn: I little thought it would be ever trimmed again, and only hoped that death would swallow up the fame. My sickness was first broughton by my imprudently exposing myselfto a strong current of air white over-licated, which caused a sudden check of perspiration. My complaint at first seemed light and hardly worth while to call a physician; but I soon began to grow worse, and a physician was called, who prescribed some pills containing a powerful preparation of mercury, to be followed by sarsaparilla root and lignum vite made into a tea, which I continued using for several months without intermission. Soon after taking the mercury I began to feel its noisonous influence taking the mercury. I began to feel its noisonous influence taking the mercury. the rear, for Mrs. Simson.

It is well known that almost all the losses incurred in the business of insurance, are the result of the burning of valuable stores and costly goods.

This increases the expense of insurance to the household er, and may possibly deprive him of the very security for which he pays his premium.

The cash payments or premiums form a fund, which, after paying expenses and losses, is represented by scrip, and is issued to the assured in proportion to the amount of their insurance.
